Dabbaloop Kitchen Food Safety and Allergen Guide

Version 2.0, October 2026. Issued by the Dabbaloop kitchen team. Dabbaloop is an invented company used for teaching; every rule here is made up.

1. Our kitchen

All Dabbaloop meals are cooked in one central kitchen in Kothrud, Pune. Lunch cooking starts at 7:30 am and every lunch box is packed and sealed by 11:15 am. Dinner cooking starts at 4:30 pm, after the dinner cut-off for changes has passed.

2. Hygiene rules we follow every day

- Every cook and packer wears a hair cap, gloves and an apron, and washes hands every 30 minutes and after handling raw vegetables.
- Fridge and freezer temperatures are checked and written in a log three times a day. Fridges must stay at 5 degrees C or colder.
- Drinking and cooking water is RO purified and tested every month by an outside lab.
- Frying oil is used for one day only and then thrown away. We never top up old oil.
- Every steel meal box is washed in water at 80 degrees C and air dried before reuse.
- The whole kitchen is deep cleaned every Sunday, which is why there are no Sunday deliveries.

3. Allergens in our food

Our menu labels show five allergens. Milk: paneer, curd, ghee and butter. Gluten: wheat phulkas and some sabzis thickened with wheat flour. Peanuts: sabudana, poha and several Maharashtrian sabzis. Sesame: til chutney and some gravies. Tree nuts: the cashew gravy that is usually served on Fridays.

Our kitchen is not nut-free. Peanuts and cashews are used in the same kitchen as every other dish, so we cannot promise that any meal is free from traces of nuts. If a nut allergy is severe, please do not rely on our meals.

Jain thalis are cooked in separate vessels marked with a green band, but in the same kitchen and by the same team.

4. Allergy notes and red stickers

If you add an allergy note under Profile, then Food preferences, the packer checks your meal against the menu of the day and puts a red sticker on the bag. The red sticker means we have read your note. It is not a medical guarantee.

5. Labels on the lid

Every meal box lid has a printed label with the date, the meal (lunch or dinner), the thali name and the allergens in that day's menu.

6. Storing and reheating at home

- Eat your meal within 3 hours of delivery. If you will eat later, move the food to the fridge within 1 hour of delivery and finish it the same day.
- Never put the steel box in a microwave. Move the food to a microwave-safe bowl and heat it until it is steaming hot all the way through.
- Curd and raita should not stay out of the fridge for more than 2 hours, and for less than 1 hour on hot summer days.
- Do not keep leftovers for the next day's lunch.

7. If something seems wrong

If the food smells sour, looks unusual or the seal on the lid is broken, do not eat it. Take a photo, keep the food and report it in the app within 2 hours of delivery. The kitchen team calls you back within 1 hour, and the meal is credited in full.

8. Kitchen visits

Customers can visit the kitchen on the first Saturday of every month between 3:00 pm and 5:00 pm. Book a visit in the app. Each group can have up to 6 people, and children under 12 must come with an adult.
